ENDING FIRES AT SEA

British Tests Of New Resisting Paint

Representatives of many British shipping companies visited the shipyard of R. and H. Green and Silley Weir, Limited, at Blackwall, to witness a demonstration of the qualities of a fire-resisting paint.

The compound is called "Firesta" and the visitors saw very inflammable material in two large wooden cases set alight. One of the cases which had not been treated soon blazed into flames; the other, which had been treated with the material, emerged from the fiery ordeal apparently little the worse for it.

Then fires were started in two similar cases, which were enamelled with the white glaze so familiar in the passenger accommodation of ships but one of them had an undercoating of the resisting compound and the other had not. Temperatures were taken and showed a great variation between the two. In a few minutes the untreated case had become a mass of cinders and the protected one was still intact.

Celluloid Test

Another test was to light fires inside boxes, halves of which had been specially treated. The untreated portions crumpled away in black pieces, while the treated portions really resisted the fire. Finally a strip of celluloid film was ignited at an untreated end, and when the flame reached a protected portion the fire was extinguished.

It is significant of the trend of thought that many busy shipping men held it worth while to attend the demonstration of destruction and resistance, and it was clear from expressions of opinion that many shipowners will consider very carefully in future the special treatment of timber in their vessels by fire-resisting compounds, of which there is now more than one type in the market. Time counts for much in an emergency at sea and a substance which has the effect of retarding the spreading of a fire for even a few minutes while fire fighting forces were being organised would have its important part in saving life and property.

One of the claims for "Firesta" is that materials treated with the compound emit very little smoke when set alight. The substance is the product of the Keystone Paint and Varnish Company, Limited.

London, Nov. 8.

Captain J. A. V. Morse, D.S.O., R.N., is being lent for duty under the Chinese Government as head of the British Naval Mission which is to cooperate in the Chinese Navy.

In accordance with the Sino-British naval agreement signed at Nanking in June, 1928, a British Naval Mission proceeded to China in 1930 to advise and assist in the programme of reorganization and modernization. Captain H. T. Baillie-Grohman, D.S.O., O.B.E., was in charge of this mission, with the rank of Commodore in the Chinese Navy. He returned home last year, since when the appointment of a successor appears to have been in abeyance.

Captain Morse was promoted in last June, after two years in the Operations Division, Admiralty. He was decorated for "extraordinarily gallant conduct" during the landing at Gallipoli from the River Clyde, where he assisted to secure the lighters at the bows under heavy fire. Later in the War he served in destroyers and commanded patrol boat P.46 and the destroyer Unity. He graduated at the R.N. Staff College in 1929.

THE RUBBER INDUSTRY

Exhibition In London

A rubber exhibition, illustrating the story of rubber on the plantation, manufacturing, and historical side, has been opened at the Science Museum, South Kensington, and will be continued for some months.

It will be 200 years ago next year since Charles de la Condamine, a French scientist, went on a voyage to Brazil, from which he brought back to Europe the first detailed account of the properties of rubber; and the exhibition, which has been arranged by the Rubber Growers' Association, is an interesting commentary on the way in which science has extended the sources of rubber until South America, the original source of it, has been completely eclipsed.

De la Condamine went to South America to measure an arc of the meridian, but he noted also the interesting vegetation, particularly the "Hevea brasiliensis" which still remains the most valued species of rubber tree.

In his account to the Academy of Science he said: "When fresh, by means of moulds any shape is given to the substance; it is impervious to water, but its most valuable property is elasticity. Of it are made infrangible bottles, boots, and hollow balls, which can be flattened at will and which, when the pressure is removed, assume their pristine form. Syringes are made in the shape of a pear, and when it is wished to fill this vessel with fluid the air is expelled by pressure, and on removal of the pressure the vessel resumes its shape."

A First Step

Tiny quantities were brought to Europe in the eighteenth century, but it was not until important discoveries in the treatment of the raw substance were made in the 40s by Thomas Hancock, whose machinery and original products are shown at the exhibition, that the rubber industry began.

For the next years the native in the mouth of the Amazon turned from their cattle, at the bidding of white men, to extract the latex from the trees and to supply the world with rubber. But in 1878 the India Office, prompted by Sir Clements Markham and others, suddenly awoke to the possibility of cultivating the "Hevea brasiliensis" in India and Ceylon. The Director of Kew Gardens was asked to empty orchid and other flower houses and to try to grow there seeds of the "Hevea brasiliensis" brought over by Sir Henry Wickham. Within a fortnight 7,000 young rubber plants had sprung up.

Transplanted to India, these plants grew into trees that in the 80s yielded rubber, and they became the nursery from which more and more plantations were grown. Thirty years ago it was realized that the last would become a powerful competitor with South America, but just how powerful was not realized until some years later. Within little more than a quarter of a century of plantation, rubber being offered on the market, it has practically wiped out the South American industry.

Year by year the production of South America has dwindled, while that of the East has increased. Last year the plantations produced 793,000 tons, 50 per cent. more than was produced only six years previously, while South America, that once supplied the world, marketed only about 12,000 tons.

MORRO CASTLE CLAIMS

Petition To Limit Liability

The owners of the ill-fated Morro Castle filed a petition October 4 in the Federal Court asking that their liability on all claims for damages arising from the destruction of the vessel on September 8 be limited to $20,000. This represents the present value of the vessel, its cargo and all collections from freight and passengers. It was indicated that claims already filed amount to more than $1,000,000. The disaster, it is set forth in the petition was "caused not by negligence, want of care or design on the part of the petitioners, their agents or servants, but solely by the fire, or inevitable accident, an act of God or the act of public enemies." No mention is made of insurance on vessel or cargo. The vessel is stated to be a total loss and that salvage operations would cost more than could be realized. At the same time that the petition was filed Judge Alfred C. Cox appointed Charles W. Hagen a special commissioner to receive all proofs of claim for damages from surviving passengers and their relatives and from shippers who lost merchandise in the burning of the vessel. Judge Cox also signed a motion or restraining order prohibiting all parties from bringing any proceedings against the petitioners in connection with the disaster except in the present action. This restraining order is effective pending the outcome of the action to limit liabilities.

CLYDE V. TYNE

Admiralty Contracts Compared In Commons Answer

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, November 19.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, questioned in the House of Commons by Miss Ward as to the value of work allocated to the Tyne and Clyde respectively under the naval programmes from 1932 to 1935, said the figures for hulls and machinery for ships included in those programmes were: For the Clyde, £23,000,000; the Tyne, £2,800,000.

In addition orders for armour, gunmountings, guns, and engines were placed approximately to the value of £300,000 for the Clyde and £1,300,000 for the Tyne.

SHIPPING RATE AGREEMENT

Batavia Parleys Abortive

Tokyo, Nov. 22.

Failure of the inter-governmental trade negotiations between Japan and the Netherlands that opened at Batavia on June 23 were forecast in business circles here today. This prediction followed the announcement that four Japanese shipping companies engaged in the South Seas trade had notified shipping interests in the Netherlands East Indies of their intention to terminate the shipping rate agreement now in force on December 1.

The notice was served following the breakdown of the Netherlands Japanese shipping conference which was called to work out a pool arrangement.

Japanese shipping interests were willing to agree to such an arrangement under the following conditions:

- 1—Pool points for the Japan-to-Java outwards service shall be fixed at 31 per cent. for the Java-China-Japan Line and 68 per cent. for the three Japanese companies, namely the Ishihara Sangyo Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha and the Nanyo Yusen Kaisha.
- 2—Should the Nippon Yusen Kaisha resume its service, its share shall be conceded by both sides equally.
- 3—The question of forming a pool for the Java-Japan service shall be studied by the Freight Conference later.
- 4—All private negotiations regarding shipping shall be conducted in Kobe.

Italy's Shipping Developments

In order to develop its steamship lines, especially the service to the Near East and the Black Sea from Venice, Trieste, and Brindisi, Italy is building several new motor-vessels, states a Trans-Ocean Kuo Min Message. They will be of 3,500 tons, with a speed of 17 miles, and others with a tonnage of 10,000 tons will have a speed of 20 miles. Two larger ships of 18,000 tons will have a speed of 25 miles.

Italian Ports Busy

A Trans-Ocean Kuo Min message states that during October the traffic in Italian ports amounted to 39,024 ships, while the goods traffic amounted to 3,588,162 tons. The figures for last year were 36,928 ships, with 2,832,243 tons of goods.

CHAPTER II

WHAT HAS HAPPENED?

"Nana, a girl of the shadows, who lives in Paris in 1888, when war with Prussia was declared, and all France is in a state of hesitation and bewilderment, has, with her girl-friend, Sata, also a lady of easy virtue, just seen the execution of her father for the murder of her mother, whom he found with another man and promptly killed. Nana curses him for being a 'false brute' shortly thereafter, the heart-sick girl witnesses the burial of her mother, utterly alone in spirit. She makes certain resolutions, thenceforth she shaves about her and returns to the novel that is her home."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

All about the home of this poor lovely girl there was the utmost squalor, the degrading atmosphere to be found only in a Paris hotel of the poor. Dirt hung from the walls in clumps. Even the plates left on the table were dusty and greasy for they had been eaten from without the customary washing. The furniture of the room was falling apart with age, here and there a cockroach slipped across the floor. The room stank of foul air, rotting food, filthy linen, filthy, unclean everything. Such a room was the only kind Nana ever knew—she had never experienced any life other than that of a human being raised just a step, a tiny step, above the level of savages or beasts. Poverty was her real mother; and squalor and filth were her inheritance. Nana lived with her aunt and uncle. She was always laboring industriously, on her bare knees, scrubbing their floors, which never seemed to get clean. Near her would sit the uncle, an old rowdy who, being a poor man, knew his place wine or two. As they walked in, the manager saluted them. He knew women of their sort attracted the better class of trade, those out strolling.

Near her table sat a pompous-looking man named Gaston Gréner. New Gréner's name was then the most magical in all of Paris, and it echoed in every salon of the town; Gréner, the great theatrical impresario; Gréner, the owner of the Apollo, who had made more women famous than anyone else in Paris. As the girls came in, he looked at them, particularly at Nana. After a scene during which Nana pushed a would-be admirer into the pool of soup, Gréner nudged his companion, Bordenave, who acted as aide-de-camp, and sometimes adviser to the great man.

"Who's that girl?" he asked. "She's superb. Who is she—where did she come from? That girl has something. She is—superb, yes, superb. Bordenave shrugged his shoulders negligently.

"Oh, merely some street urchin," he said. "But she is pretty—and haughty—shall I bring her over here?"

"Yes."

"In a moment Bordenave returned without Nana."

Bordenave reported, "The arrogant little rascal. She said if you wanted to see her you could come over to her table. Can you imagine?"

"That's all right. I'll go. I don't mind—where there's a pretty girl at stake."

So Gréner, with Bordenave, went over to Nana's table, where Nana had been telling Nana, who was un-in the scheme of things, and was not very happy. The aunt was of the usual type, a young widow, who had been wondering how the grave of her mother would be marked. The old man, however, "Marked," he said, "that's good. Fear that mark her mother's grave. When the poor die, they're dead, and they're put away quick in a room for the poor who are coming."

Nana looked up at him, a strange compelling strength on her lovely face. "Oh," she said, "that's how it is, yes?"

"Then," she said slowly, "I shall not be poor, will I?"

"But before you're rich," she sneered, "clean those dishes. And," she added, "that's my advice. Leave Sata alone. That jade will do you no good. Follow her and you'll end as your mother did—in a pauper's grave, where all bad women end."

"No," said Nana, slowly—"no... I had women—foolish women who let men put them there."

She finished her hated work in fast time, then, washing her face quickly, slipped over her attractive young body a dress that was simple enough but indeed seemed expressive in its modeled to reveal her allure in the most effective fashion. Tonight she was going to start, yes, tonight, she and Sata would go places and do things, for themselves.

Her face was slightly flushed from her work, and hurrying to get out of that malodorous house, her hair was a bit awry under her gay hat. She half ran out into the street, the home she knew best, her real home, to meet the all-consoling Sata.

Then, both of them went to their favorite rendezvous, the place where they might be likely to meet pleasant—and helpful acquaintances.

It was a gay place, this Café of the Seven Trout, with music and dance and song, and if they met someone who would pay the bill, perhaps they would take a glass of aware of the power and prestige of Gréner, all about him. And, after the usual amount of time, Gréner asked Nana if she could do it.

"Act, is it?" laughed Nana. "You're the first man who has ever asked me out and out to act—well, yes, I suppose so, if you wish."

Gréner leaned closer, a look in his eyes that revealed more than a purely business interest in this lovely girl.

"I do wish it. And what Gréner wishes is done."

"Right," he nodded Bordenave, "is done."

"Mamma!" said Gréner, "come to my office tomorrow at eleven, and we shall see about making you into a great actress—and perhaps other things too—eh?"

He smiled knowingly at his last remark. Nana's face was stolid. This was an old story to her. She had no illusions left. That old man merely coveted her—and he had money—and she wanted that money.

So according to her, a little while his money she would find means of getting.

"Yes, Monsieur," she smiled seductively. "I shall come to be made into a great actress, and perhaps other things—too."

Far off, in the corner of the restaurant, a young soldier with some of his friends. From their conversation it was apparent that they were all impressed with the ineffable beauty of Nana. Of the four, Georges Mûlard stood out. He was a rugged, hearty, handsome face. One felt he was the kind of man who, once having made up his mind to follow a course, would never rest until it was accomplished. A real soldier of France, one saw, and a real commander of men.

He was looking at Nana with a queer expression in his eyes. Inside his head his thoughts ran riot. "How can I get her? How can I get her? How can I get her? How can I get her?"

Why—she's absolutely divine. Her hair, her teeth, her smile, her skin—those of an angel, on earth purely by mistake."

He laughed to himself, but his laughter died on his lips as another thought came to him.

"By Jove," he said, "I will meet her—and before very long, too."

Home Baked Cakes For Tea

Old Time Ginger-bread

One egg, 5ozs. treacle or golden syrup, 1ozs. flour, 3ozs. chopped dates, half-teaspoonful cinnamon, 2ozs. lard, half-teaspoonful ground ginger, half-teaspoonful bicarbonate of soda, three-quarter gill of milk, pinch of salt, 3ozs. brown sugar.

Sieve the flour, bicarbonate or soda, cinnamon, ground ginger, and salt; add the chopped dates. Grease and line a small square tin. Warm the treacle and lard together until both are melted, then beat the egg and sugar together and add them to the flour.

Stir in the milk and mix well. Bake in a moderate oven of 340°F. for thirty to forty minutes, and cool on a wire tray. This quantity cuts into nine or twelve pieces.

Lemon Jumbles

8ozs. flour, 2ozs. butter, 3ozs. castor sugar, half-teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half-teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, finely grated rind of one small lemon, juice of half a lemon, egg to bind.

Sieve the flour with a pinch of salt, cream of tartar, and bicarbonate of soda into a basin; rub the butter in with the tips of the fingers, add the castor sugar and lemon rind, then bind with beaten egg and lemon juice to make a soft dough.

Flour a pastry board, and form the dough into a longish roll with the floured hands.

Cut off pieces of equal size, roll each piece into a smaller roll with the hands, twist the roll round to form a bun, brush with milk and sift with sugar. Decorate with a few currants or sultanas, put on a greased baking-sheet, and bake in a quick oven till golden brown.

Russian Roll

Two eggs, their weight in flour, butter and sugar, half-teaspoonful of baking powder, jam glaze, and green almond paste.

Sieve the flour and baking powder on to a piece of kitchen paper. Put the butter and sugar into a basin and work together with a wooden spoon until they are of a creamy consistency and pale in colour. Beat in each egg separately.

Then fold in lightly the sieved flour and baking powder and blend thoroughly with a metal spoon, adding a little milk as required.

Prepare a Swiss roll tin in the following way: Grease lightly, and instead of lining it in the usual way with one piece of paper, use two pieces, and line so that the tin is divided into two equal parts. Put half the cake mixture into one half of the well greased paper-lined tin. Colour the rest of the mixture pale pink with a little cochineal, and put it into the second half of the tin. Cook in a moderate oven until golden brown and firm. Turn out of the tin immediately, trim off the crisp edges, and cool on a wire cake tray.

To prepare the almond icing: While the cake is cooling prepare the almond icing, using:

4ozs. ground almonds, 4ozs. castor sugar, 4ozs. icing sugar, one teaspoonful of orange flower water, one teaspoonful of vanilla essence, half-teaspoonful almond essence, half egg, two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice.

Mix the dry ingredients well together, add the essences, and blend with the beaten egg and lemon juice. Work in sufficient green colouring to make it an attractive shade. Knead well to make it pliable.

Then prepare some jam glaze by warming about two tablespoonfuls of apricot jam and a little lemon juice and rubbing it through a sieve. If very stiff a teaspoonful of warm water may be added. The glaze is used to stick the strips of cake together.

Finishing Touch

To finish off the cake: Trim the cake into strips one to one and a half inches wide and ten inches long, so that there will be an equal number of strips of pink and white cake, join them together chequerboard fashion, using the glaze.

Roll the almond paste out to an oblong length sufficiently long and wide to wrap round the chequerboard cake. Brush the outside of the cake with the glaze, wrap the almond paste round firmly, arranging for the joint to come in one corner.

Decorate the top edges by pinching with the finger. Leave about twenty-four hours before cutting into slices.

Chocolate Roll

1 pint castor sugar, 1 pint flour, 3 eggs, 2 heaped teaspoonfuls of cocoa, 2: teaspoonfuls of warm water, half teaspoonful of baking powder.

Sieve the flour, baking powder, and cocoa on to a sheet of paper. Separate the yolks from the whites of eggs. Beat the yolks and sugar together in a basin until they are pale in colour and light and frothy. Fold in the flour and the water, and, lastly, the stiffly beaten whites of egg.

Put into a greased and paper-lined Swiss-roll tin, bake in a quick oven until firm and cooked, turn out quickly on to a sugared cloth or paper, trim the edges, roll up immediately. Put the cake to cool on a cake tray.

Whip up some cream, unroll when the cake is cold, spread with the whipped cream, and re-roll.

SWEET POTATO PUDDINGS

Here is a delicious pudding made with apples and sweet potatoes:—

4 sweet potatoes
4 apples
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
Butter
Breadcrumbs.

Scrub the sweet potatoes and boil them till they are tender. Peel and cut the apples into quarters. Place them in a saucepan with the white sugar and, adding just sufficient water to keep them from burning, cook them over a gentle heat for 20 minutes.

Peel the potatoes and cut them lengthwise in thick slices. Butter a pie dish and place first a layer of potatoes, then a layer of apples. Add dabs butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. Repeat until all the ingredients are used. Top with breadcrumbs and dabs of butter and bake in a hot oven for about 15 minutes.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

6 sweet potatoes
1 cup brown sugar
Butter
Salt and pepper.
1 cup of water.

Scrub potatoes, boil them, and when cooked strip off their skins. Make a syrup by boiling the sugar and water. Place the potatoes in a buttered baking tin. Season with salt and pepper, pour the syrup over them and bake in a hot oven till the potatoes are brown.

This dish may be eaten as a sweet or served with hot roast pork, which is often improved by some sweet addition.

HOW to TAKE 'ASPRO' FOR DENGUE

AT the first signs of the dreaded Dengue don't procrastinate:—

Take two to three 'ASPRO' tablets every two hours until the Fever abates and the pain ceases. 'ASPRO' is the greatest Fever Antidote ever given to the world. No other medicine has its anti-pyretic, anti-periodic and anti-germinal propensities after ingestion in the system. 'ASPRO' is far more effective than quinine and there are no harmful after effects. Make certain that 'ASPRO' is always in the home ready for any emergency.

FOR DENGUE MALARIA and other FEVERS always take ASPRO according to the above DIRECTIONS

ALSO USE 'ASPRO' FOR —

Temperature	Irritability	Lumbago	Asthma
Rheumatism	Toothache	Earache	Colds
Sleeplessness	Hay Fever	Malaria	Gout

Nothing Equals 'ASPRO' for Dengue & Rheumatism

Sally's Estate,
Ingham, North Queensland.
Dear Sirs,
Having used your 'ASPRO' for Dengue Fever, and also for Rheumatism, I have found that nothing equals 'ASPRO' for relief from pain. I was very bad the last week in December, and could not sleep with Rheumatism in my legs. A neighbour called to see me, and she told me that 'ASPRO' Tablets were good for pains. I straightaway sent to the chemist for a box of 'ASPRO', and I can truthfully say that I was surprised at the relief I got after taking the first two 'ASPRO' Tablets—they took away the pains and I could sleep of a night. I took three Tablets a night for four nights, and they relieved me, and now I am as well as ever.
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) (Mrs.) FLORIE LOVE.

'ASPRO' Works Wonders for Malaria

Gladstone, Queensland.
Gentlemen,
I think it is up to me to let you know how I have benefited by 'ASPRO'. Ever since 1910 I have been a martyr to MALARIA FEVER, having contracted same in Rhodesia, German East Africa and the Straits Settlements.
I came to Australia from the latter country five years ago, and for the first two and a half years was continually in hospital in Victoria and New South Wales. On arriving in Queensland, a friend advised me to try 'ASPRO'. I did, and it had worked wonders. I still continue to get slight attacks of Malaria, but if I take a few 'ASPRO' Tablets and hot lemon water, and rest a few hours, I am quite O.K. again. I wouldn't be without 'ASPRO' for anything and always carry a box about with me. I can thoroughly recommend them to anyone suffering from the same malady.
This testimonial is unsolicited and you may make any use of it that you think fit.
Yours faithfully,
L. de B. HAY-COCHLAN.

OBJECTION TO U.S. CHARGE

No Discrimination By Germany

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, Nov. 27.

The United States Note to Germany, alleging that the Reich Government is discriminating against American creditors and holders of German bonds, meets with vigorous objections from the German Press which were summed up in the following semi-official statement issued on Tuesday: "The Arguments contained in the American note do not go to the root of the problem. It is not a question of regulating the relations between creditors and debtors in proportion to the exchange of goods between Germany and the various creditor countries, but rather a question of how the sums paid in by German debtors in Reichsmarks can be transferred. Since Germany in the present situation is unable to raise the necessary foreign currencies, the only way in making this transfer possible is to increase German exports. All attempts by the German Government to initiate negotiations with the United States on this question have so far been unavailing.

The debt problem, moreover, is not exclusively a German problem since the United States also have claims against numerous countries which, like Germany, are unable to meet their liabilities in foreign currencies. This has been proved by the fact that the American Government have recently considered it necessary to address identical requests for payment to governments of all debtor nations."

ABYSSINIA INCIDENT
Amicably Settled With Italy

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Rome, Nov. 27.

The recent disquieting incident in the Abyssinian town of Gondar which gave rise to fears of Italian armed reprisals when the Italian consulate was attacked by Abyssinians and resulting in one Askari guard being killed and three wounded, has now been settled amicably, according to information received on Tuesday from the Italian Minister at Addis Ababa. An ample apology in due form was given by the chief official of the town of Gondar when he and an armed escort assembled in the square in front of the Italian consulate and solemnly saluted the Italian flag. The Chief of the local police and his officials who took part in the attack have been relieved of their posts and committed to trial, while compensation of one thousand Marie Theresa dollars was awarded to the family of the dead guard and one hundred and fifty each to the wounded soldiers.

This recalls the interesting fact that the Marie Theresa dollar, originally minted in Vienna in the middle of the 18th century, is still the current coin in Abyssinia—Transocean Kuo Min.

UPROAR IN BELGIUM

First Appearance of M. Theunis

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Brussels, Nov. 27.

Tumultuous scenes and shouts of "down with the Bankers Government" greeted Premier Theunis when he appeared in Parliament for the first time with the new cabinet on Tuesday afternoon. The speech announcing the Government policy was continually interrupted by the attempts of the opposition to discredit the cabinet by the allusions of the old scandals. The chief points of interest in the Government programme were the arrangements that the stability of the franc will be maintained under all circumstances and that the cost of living must be reduced by relaxing the quotas and costs of production decreased by the lowering of railway tariffs which also mean a cut in railwaymen's wages.

An anti-climax to the uproar created by the socialist-democrats at the commencement of the session, was provided by their leader Vandervelde whose speech was really a veiled offer to co-operate with the Government—Transocean Kuo Min.

MORE STUDENT RIOTS

University Insignia Dispute

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Cologne, Nov. 27.

Taking the cue from the Vienna students, about 1,500 pupils of the Cologne University staged a demonstration on Tuesday as a protest against the action of the Czechoslovakian authorities in compelling the German university at Prague to surrender its historical insignia. Following an address by Professor Spahn who expressed strong views on the events at Prague, the students assembled at university building and marched to the Czechoslovakian consulate where they gave voice to their indignation by shouting protests in chorus and wound up the demonstration by singing patriotic songs. They retreated in an orderly fashion when the police appeared on the scene and began to clear the street.

The Czech-consul has lodged a complaint with the German Foreign Ministry. Not to be behind hand, the Cologne students likewise have despatched a telegram to the German Foreign Minister, Baron Von Neurath protesting against "the unheard-of insults offered to our oldest German university at Prague" and demanding that steps be taken to bring about the return of the German insignia—Transocean Kuo Min.

THE SCARLET EMPRESS

Next Change At The Queen's

Marlene Dietrich's newest starring picture, the Joseph von Sternberg production, "The Scarlet Empress," coming on Saturday to the Queen's Theatre is taken from a diary of Catherine the Great, Russia's most colourful and exciting empress.

Two centuries roll back on the screen, and Catherine the Great lives again. All the splendour, the barbaric civilization of decadent Russia, the bizarre splendour of history's most exciting court are brought to screen by the superb acting and personality of Dietrich and the direction of Von Sternberg. Here for the first time, movie fans get a picture of the real Russian empress who ruled a mighty empire with her brains and her beauty.

Von Sternberg has assembled an imposing supporting cast including John Lodge, Sam Jaffe, noted Broadway actor, Louise Dresser, C. Aubrey Smith, Ruthelma Stevens, Olive Tell and Gavin Gordon.

"SADIE MCKEE"

At The Oriental

One of the outstanding screen productions of the year will be on view, when "Sadie McKee," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, film starring Joan Crawford at the head of a brilliant cast, will be shown at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

With a supporting cast including such "names" as Franchot Tone, Gerie Raymond, Esther Ralston, Edward Arnold, Earl Oxford, Jean Dixon, Leo G. Carroll and others, the story is said to be one of the most gripping ever translated to the screen.

"Sadie McKee" is a vivid dramatization of the average girl. She is the girl who lives next door, or just around the corner.

In the story she is the daughter of a cook in small town. She falls in love with the carefree young man, she elopes and tries her luck in a great city, in this case New York.

Her young man deserts her for a glamorous vaudeville torch singer. She takes what jobs she can get and never desponds. She is catapulted into the luxury of $17,000,000 dollars when in desperation she marries a drunken millionaire.

The conclusion of the picture holds a tremendous surprise, yet consistent with the character of Sadie McKee.

A RARE DISTINCTION

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, November 12. Mr. John Milne presided at the opening of the 182nd session of the Royal Society of Arts. Only one other President has held this office for two years.

That was Lord Alverstone, whose presidential term was extended over 1894 to include the Chicago World's Fair.

The reason for Mr. Milne's second year as President is that he has had much to do with the forthcoming Exhibition of British Art in Industry, at Burlington House.

The R.S.A. headquarters in the Adelphi is one of the finest Adam houses in London, and was built specially by the Adam brothers for the society.

As the R.S.A. holds the frehold, this architectural monument of 18th century London is presumably safe from the "developer's" pickaxe.

Comedy At The King's

Sydney Howard, the Yorkshire comedian, is seen at his best in his latest British production, "Trouble" which is showing at the King's Theatre to-day.

Set in a colourful background, the picture, which affords Howard plenty of opportunity to exploit his well-known inimitable fooling and amusing gags, concerns the adventures of a dumb ship's steward on a pleasure cruise boat in his attempt to capture two jewel thieves. The way in which he finally succeeds in capturing the culprits, with the help of his equally dumb-mate (George Turner), is exceedingly funny, and involves many funny situations which are thoroughly enjoyable.

"I'VE GOT YOUR

At The Alhambra

"I've Got Your Number," a Warner Bros film starring dynamic Joan Blondell, and now showing at the Alhambra Theatre, brings to the screen for the first time the thrilling story of the telephone.

If one believes the telephone system to be a cold mechanical means of communication, he has but to see this thrilling film, "I've Got Your Number" reveals inner workings of the system with the incessant hum of wires bringing joy and sorrow, tragedy and success.

Joan Blondell plays the role of a telephone operator. According to telephone officials, the saucy Warner Bros. star resembles her real sister operators more than any other screen player. Her alert, decisive manner is one of the necessary requisites at a switch-board, where a problem of momentous importance may flash at any time. Tragedy or success depends upon the intelligence and quick-wittedness of the girl.

Each member of the large cast, which includes such screen favorites as Glenda Farrell, Pat O'Brien, Allen Jenkins, Eugene Pallette, Henry O'Neill, Hobart Cavanaugh, together with a score of others, was carefully selected from Hollywood's thousands to personify on the screen the countless employees of the telephone system who serve the public night and day.

"I've Got Your Number" includes many of the big events which have recently occurred and as a proof of the story's timeliness, one of the greatest atrocities of modern times was solved when two kidnappers were trapped in California not many miles from the spot where the picture was being filmed. A girl at a switchboard, because of her courage and initiative accomplished what the police and thousands of citizens had been unable to do.

reed fathom curves have been added over the entire chart. The reissue of this chart in July, 1932 is cancelled. Mariners are warned against using obsolete charts.

"THE CATS PAW"

Harold Lloyd In New Kind Of Comedy

In a preview granted to pressmen yesterday of Harold Lloyd's latest picture, "The Cats Paw," which will be coming to the King's Theatre this week, we see this world-famous comedian "doing his stuff" in an entirely new way. Gone is the idiotic fool who gets into a mess at every turn. In this latest picture, Lloyd acts the role of a young man brought up in China, simple-minded and well steeped in the Chinese classics.

He returns to his home country America; is whirled into politics and is elected Mayor of his city. His simple mind, crowded with lofty ideals, lands him into many humorous situations. In his quest for a "mother for his children" he meets a girl who gives him inspiration in all his public duties with the result that in spite of the fact that the city is under the control of gangsters and that graft pervades right through the governmental machinery, Lloyd rights matters and becomes a public hero.

There are several screamingly funny situations and the concluding part of the story brings out a climax that is sure to provoke laughter in even the most sober minded person.

Of especial interest to Hong Kong is the fact that Cowan, who was recently in the Colony with Bailey and Miss Betty Compson, appears in this picture.

Throughout the story, Harold Lloyd quotes the Chinese classics in English and they are very amusing throughout. Moreover another point of interest in the picture is the fact that a good deal of the dialogue is in Chinese, which, to anyone who understands Chinese, is really funny, while a Chinese song, sung in Cantonese proves very acceptable and is very entertaining, not to say witty.

Here is a new departure from the Harold Lloyd we used to know. The days of the meaningless farce seems to be gone and the star in his new comic role is equally acceptable.

JIMMY THE GENT

At The Alhambra
To-morrow

The screen's toughest actor isn't the least bit tough.

But that's only one of the many contradictions that go to constitute the treckled Jimmy Cagney, who has the stellar role in "Jimmy the Gent," a Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

In "Jimmy The Gent," he talks in hard, brittle fashion. Away from the camera, he speaks softly, in almost soothing style. He's accepted as Hollywood's "tough guy" and his chief studies at the moment are the piano and singing! "He's a tough guy"—and he was launched upon his career as a female impersonator! That was in "Pitter Patter" in the long ago on Broadway—and he followed that job by taking a role as a roughneck in Maxwell Anderson's "Outside Looking In."

Cagney, who punched several persons in "Jimmy The Gent" and some in practically every picture he makes, has rarely had to use his fists in real life. It is on record, however, that he can handle himself creditably.

He's tough and hard—but he doesn't smoke, swear or drink. His punches look more real on the screen than those of anyone else, but those he has hit for the camera report his blows the softest.

In "Jimmy The Gent" Jimmy has the role of a tough egg who digs up phoney heirs to collect fortunes from unclaimed estates. The picture is based on a rollicking comedy romance by Laird Doyle and Ray Nazarro and adapted to the screen by Bertram Millhauser.

Bette Davis has the leading feminine role while others in the cast include Alice White, Allen Jenkins, Alan Dinehart, Arthur Hohl and Mayo Methot, Michael Curtiz directed.

"JUST SMITH"

At The Queen's

In his latest release, "Just Smith" now filming at the Queen's Theatre, Tom Walls portrays the role of a debonaire society crook.

Released by Gaumont British Productions, the story is a screen adaptation from Frederic Lion's play of a gay society crook entitled "Never Come Back."

"Smith" is a character very much within the orbit of Tom Walls, and he makes that very presentable gentleman, crook, an engaging personality. Hoodwinking Mrs. Linkley, a lady in love with "titles," he entertains her and a little party aboard Mortimer's yacht.

The comedy on the yacht turns to serio-comedy as Mrs. Linkley's country house when a valuable necklace is discovered missing from a wall safe and Detective Inspector Rolis suspects everyone in turn.

The mystification of the detective officer is the high light of the play and here the varying situations are bright and amusing. The competence of the cast raises "Just Smith" to a high standard and this new Tom Walls picture is an entertaining and popular attraction.

DUKE OF KENT

Takes Seat In Lords

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 12.

Wearing his scarlet and ermine robes as a Peer of the Realm for the first time, the Duke of Kent, the youngest son of the King, took his seat in the House of Lords.

Still known affectionately among his friends and intimates as "P. G."—his initials as Prince George—the new Duke did not enter fully into his new dignity until after the ceremony.

His two brothers, the Duke of Cornwall (the Prince of Wales) and the Duke of York, both wearing the scarlet and ermine ducal robes, were his sponsors. Between them the new Duke walked in procession to the Lord Chancellor, seated on the Woolsack.

Colourful Procession

Black Rod, with his ebony wand of office, Garter King-at-Arms, in his tabard, and the Lord Great Chamberlain preceded the royal brothers and led them to the Woolsack, where the Duke of Kent presented his Writ of Summons—signed by the King's hand—to the Lord Chancellor, and the Letters Patent of his title, carried by Garter King-at-Arms.

The Lord Chancellor, in black robes, handed the Letters Patent to the Clerk of the Parliament and the Duke of Kent signed the Roll of Peers, using his new signature, Kent.

After taking his seat on the right of the throne, uncovered specially for the ceremony, the Duke made three bows to the Lord Chancellor, raising his three-cornered black hat three times, to which the Lord Chancellor replied in like manner.

Crowded House

The attendance at the House was the largest known for some time. Practically all the seats on the Government side were filled and most of the Opposition Peers were present. Lord Halsam, the Leader of the House, sat in the middle of the front Government bench, and on either side of him were the other members of the Government in the House of Lords.

The Peers' Gallery and the gallery reserved for members of Parliament were filled, and there were several who were unable to gain admission. Most people had passed for the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery than could be accommodated, and those who arrived ten minutes before the ceremony were told that there was no room inside the gallery.

HOTEL MANAGER ATTACKED

Chinese On Serious Charges

The attack on Mr. Ma Tau Nam, managing director of the Empress Hotel in the early hours of November 18 on the stairway at his residence at No. 40 High Street, had its sequel at Central Magistrate yesterday when committal proceedings were opened against three Chinese, Ho Lam Sang, Pun Fong and Kwan Yiu who were charged with (a) assault with intent to rob; (b) maliciously wounding complainant; and (c) with possession of offensive weapons, two knives, one toy pistol, one cotton wool pad and a bottle. The second defendant was also alternately charged with aiding and abetting in wounding the complainant.

Mr. T.P.K. Kemble appeared for the complainant, and the defendants were not legally represented. Sub-Inspector J. Fender watched the proceedings on behalf of the Police.

At the outset, Mr. Kemble informed his Worship that complainant was not present in Court as he had just been taken ill.

The facts of the case, as outlined by Mr. Kemble, were that the complainant was the managing director of the Empress Hotel. He lived at No. 40 High Street, third floor, and his usual habit was to go to the Hotel at 3.30 in the afternoon and return to his residence at about midnight in his private motor car.

On November 18, shortly after midnight, he returned to his house. He walked up the stairs and when he got on to the first floor landing he saw a man in European clothes with his hat pulled down, coming down. When complainant was about two yards from this man, he asked what was the matter whereupon the man jumped on him and seized him by the neck. Two other men then appeared from the second floor and the complainant heard the first defendant, who, incidentally was the only man wearing European clothes, ask one of the men to put his hand in the complainant's left hand-pocket. Complainant felt a hand in his pocket and at the same time felt another man put something against his left side and told him not to move otherwise he would be killed. Complainant, however, continued to struggle, whereupon two of the defendants produced knives and threatened him. Undaunted, however, the complainant kept on shouting and eventually a police whistle was blown and the robbers then ran away. The complainant gave chase and when he got to the street, he saw a man in white jacket running eastward along High Street. He pursued this man and while doing so he was accosted by a Chinese who proved to be constable 438 and who asked him what was the matter. Complainant told him and the constable then took up the chase and after a certain amount of dodging, eventually caught the man in Kwal Heung Street. The man was searched and on him was found a toy revolver, wrapped up in a piece of cotton rest.

In the meantime, the complainant's chauffeur who was sitting in the car outside, on hearing the shouts, took hold of a torch of weapon of some sort and chased the first defendant, the man in European clothes. Once he actually caught hold of the man by the collar but he succeeded in wrenching away. He was eventually caught in Second Street. In the course of the chase, the first defendant discarded his coat and while on the way back, the chauffeur picked up a cotton wool pad which he had seen the first defendant drop. When the first defendant was taken to No. 7 Police Station he was searched and an empty bottle was found on his person. The bottle was sent to the Government Analyst who, however, was unable to say definitely whether it had contained ether.

The third defendant was not chased at all but at the Police Station, the first defendant volunteered information as to where he could be found, and as a result he was arrested. On his person was found a piece of paper with the following words written in Chinese, "Be sure to come and co-operate to get rich at 7.30 p.m."

After the first and second defendants had been caught, they were taken back to complainant's residence, and an Indian constable who arrived on the scene on hearing the commotion went up the stairs, looked around, and found the blade of a knife on the first

SEQUEL TO COLLISION

Judgment Reserved In Local Case

The claim arising out of the collision in Harbour between the "Michael Jensen" and the "Chian Lee" came again before the Chief Justice His Honour Mr. A. D. A. Macgregor yesterday. At the end of the day's hearing, His Lordship reserved judgment.

The owners of the Michael Jensen are claiming $100,000 against the owners of the Chian Lee while there is a counter claim of $70,000 against the Michael Jensen.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C. and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. O. E. C. Marton, of Messrs. Deacons was for the owners of the Michael Jensen and Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh Jones of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, was for the Ching Kee Navigation Company.

In the concluding address by Mr. Sheldon, Counsel said that among the many facts of the case upon which both sides were agreed was that the Michael Jensen, two minutes after she had sighted the Chian Lee, and believed, as was a fact, that it was bound for the Central Fairway, and knowing that she herself was going to the Central Fairway, and that therefore the risk of collision had arisen, stopped her engines.

The Master of the Michael Jensen and the First Officer, Mr. Peterson had given evidence that the stopping of the engines had nothing to do with the world to do with the Chian Lee. On that fact, Counsel wished to make three submissions: (1) that as a matter of law and purely as a matter of fact, the Michael Jensen was not allowed to say that the stopping of the engines was not for the purpose of avoiding a collision; (2) that as a matter of fact the only fair inference was that the engines were stopped because of the sighting of the Chian Lee; and (3) that even if these engines were stopped as a matter of practice and not because of the Chian Lee, and the Court was allowed to take cognizance of that fact, then the practice was wrong and did not excuse the Michael Jensen.

Counsel quoted authorities in support of his argument to show that the Michael Jensen was to blame for not keeping her speed when the green light was on her port bow, and submitted that the Chian Lee did everything that could reasonably be expected of her and that his client's story of what had happened was correct.

Mr. Jenkin's Submissions in support of his argument to show that the Michael Jensen was to blame for not keeping her speed when the green light was on her port bow, and submitted that the Chian Lee did everything that could reasonably be expected of her and that his client's story of what had happened was correct.

If that was true it meant that there was gross negligence on the part of the Master and Chief Officer and that no attempt was made by either of them to check their erroneous course. Mr. Jenkin referred to this contention of the defence as a "bombshell" and said that the cross-examination of the witnesses did not bear out that that had been the line of defence all along. It was surprising to him why this could not have been plainly and fairly put to anyone of the five witnesses called for the Michael Jensen.

The case turned entirely on whether or not the Court believed the officers of the Michael Jensen.

Counsel went at some length into the details of the case and submitted that under the circumstances the Michael Jensen was navigated in a proper manner and that it was not necessary for her while within the limits of the Harbour to keep up her speed as suggested by Counsel for the defendant.

Mr. Kemble then produced evidence in support of his outline after which the case was adjourned.

MUI TSAI CASES

Kwan Sul Tsan, a married woman residing at No. 84 High Street, first floor was fined $100 for having kept an unregistered "mul tsai."

Defendant told Mr. Schofield, before whom she was charged that the girl was not treated as a "mul tsai" and that she had received the girl in return for a debt of $60.

The Bench was informed that Sub-Inspector Fraser on visiting the house had found the girl with a number of what appeared to be cane marks, on her arms and legs.

Another woman, who was also convicted of keeping an unregistered "mul tsai," whom she had chastised, was fined $150. In this case it was stated that the girl was presented by her father to a go-between in Canton three years ago for $120. Her work in defendant's house consisted of sweeping the floor, cooking, and washing. She received no wages, but was given "lucky money." Apparently she had been ordered to find the socks of the defendant's husband, and when she failed to do so, he had asked his wife to chastise her.

- YOUTHFUL THIEF

With the arrest on Tuesday of a Chinese lad of seventeen, who was caught red handed in the act of stealing a suit of clothing from No. 41, Tung Lo Wan Road, the mystery of a number of thefts in the Talkoo District has been cleared up.

The arrested person is only 17 years of age and was under a bond to be of good behaviour. For breach of this bond he was fined $3. In respect of other charges enumerated below he was sentenced to a total of seven months' hard labour.

Defendant was charged with (a) larceny of $30 the property of Mr. T. F. Stanton from No. 1 Talkoo Terrace on September 19; (b) larceny of $22 from Lt. L. D. Luce, of the H.M.S. Osiris, from the Talkoo Club chambers on November 4; (c) larceny of $75 from Lt. J. Hamilton, of the H.M.S. Osiris, from the Talkoo Club chambers on November 8; larceny of $10 from Lt. Hamilton from the Talkoo Club chambers on September 28; larceny of one fountain pen, two cuff links and three gold studs, valued at $35, from Mr. J. Anderson, engineer, from No. 2 Talkoo Terrace on November 11 and November 12; and larceny of a suit of grey cotton clothing from No. 41 Tung Lo Wan Road.

Sergeant Kelly said defendant was caught stealing the clothes from No. 41 Tung Lo Wan Road. His finger-prints were taken, and it was found that he had a previous conviction on November 4 and had been bound over in a bond of $50 for six months.

Chiu Wah was fined a total of $600 and the alternative of six months' hard labour was meted out by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when charged on three counts of distilling Chinese spirits without a licence, and possession of apparatus for distilling and fermenting.

Revenue Officer Humphreys said defendant rented a flat at 367 Castle Peak Road, specially for the purpose of distilling, and had just commenced work. An order was made for the confiscation of the distilling apparatus.

Mrs. C. C. Stark, of No. 274, The Peak, was fined $10 by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistracy yesterday on a summons for allowing her Scotch terrier abroad in Stubbs Road unmuzzled and unleashed on November 15. Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, of Messrs. Deacons, appeared on the defendant's behalf and pleaded guilty. Replying to his Worship, Mr. Mackinlay said he was not certain whether the dog had been innoculated.

"Do you know that your first duty is to the Court? I have a mind to charge you with contempt of Court. It's lucky for you I did not take out a warrant for your arrest. You cannot send your servant to say that you are busy," so said Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday to Chan Shiu Kai of Kowloon Tong when defendant failed to appear in court on Tuesday for allowing his dog abroad without a muzzle in Kent Road on November 3. Defendant was fined $12.

Admitting five charges of theft of electric bell switches from various addresses, Chau Fong, unemployed, was sentenced to a total of ten weeks' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Detective Sergeant Shepherd said defendant was seen by a small boy stealing the switch from No. 12 Hing Hoh Road. He was chased, and arrested.

An assistant store keeper of the Kowloon Motor Bus Company pleaded guilty to the theft of a quantity of pins and rivets from the Company at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. He was sentenced two months' hard labour.

For being in possession of a chopper fit for an unlawful purpose, Li Hon Chuen was fined $50 or in default one month's hard labour by Mr. Macfadyen yesterday. The defendant admitted frankly that he carried the instrument in his girdle because he was on the lookout for a man who owed him $20 and had made no attempt to pay.

"Stealing from women is not encouraged here," was Mr. E. W. Hamilton's remark, when he sentenced Chan Wing, unemployed, to six months' hard labour and 21 strokes of the birch, at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, for stealing a handbag containing $18.30 and miscellaneous articles, from Yeung Chausze, a married woman, at Pei Ho Street near Cheungshawan Road on Monday.

A woman, Wong Sam, with three children, was fined ten cents by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistracy yesterday on a charge of hawking without a licence.

AN AUCTION CENTURY

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, November 12. Although Lord Hawke did not go to Christie's prepared to buy the unique glass goblet designed in 1759 to commemorate the naval victory of his ancestor at Quiberon Bay, he was keenly interested in the bidding.

When the score had reached £88 and it seemed likely that the bidding was over he remarked, as a cricketer: "I should like to take a hundred." Overhearing this a friend called £100.

At this Lord Hawke was delighted, especially as the goblet proceeded to make five more runs and go to £105.

Lord Hawke is very proud of a picture of the light at Quiberon Bay. This was given him by his brother, Admiral Stanhope Hawke, who provided much detailed instruction as to the masts and sails of the period to the painter of the reconstructed scene, the late W. L. Wyllie, R.A.

Berlin, Nov. 27. The very existence of a memorandum, which the foreign press alleged, was handed to Hitler by the Commander-in-Chief of the Reichswehr, General Fritsch and stated to contain many criticisms of the Government policy, was categorically denied in an inspired statement issued to the German Press on Tuesday which stresses that all rumours of Fritsch's intended resignation was also completely unfounded. The statement further denies the insinuations of dissatisfaction in the present regime allegedly expressed by the War Minister, Blomberg, and General Reichswehr, finally refuting the assertion made by a number of foreign papers that considerable friction exists between the Reichswehr and the Propaganda Ministry.

Saar territory to Germany are now being discussed in negotiations which opened on Tuesday at Berlin between representatives of the Reich Government and the Saar Governing Commission.

PISTOL DUEL IN FRANCE

Called Off At The Last Minute

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Paris, Nov. 27.

A pistol duel, which according to press reports, was to have been fought at the break of dawn on Tuesday morning between the nationalist deputy, Franklin-Bouillon and Jean Goy of the nationalist ex-servicemen organization "Union Nationale des Combattants," as a result of Bouillon having characterised Goy's much-discussed interviews with Hitler as an "unpatriotic act," did not come off after all, since the seconds of the two antagonists agreed at the last minute that the dispute was purely a political one and not involving a point of personal honour and therefore not calling for the spilling of any blood.

It is notable that Franklin-Bouillon's harsh criticism of Goy's visit to Berlin is not meeting with the full approval of his own Nationalist press, Count Ormesson writing in "Figaro," taking up the cudgels for Goy by pointing out that no Frenchman was ever censured for going to Moscow but that some 350,000 for unfathomable reasons appear to consider it unpatriotic for a Frenchman to visit Berlin. Ormesson adds that nothing is more natural than that Frenchmen should go to Berlin in order to discuss matters with leading German personalities, though such private discussions could, of course, never replace official negotiations.

SOCIAL WELFARE

Open Spaces

(By Rev. T. F. Ryan S.J.)

A few years ago, after a lecture delivered on some aspect of Social Welfare work, one speaker took the lecturer to task for devoting so much time to the question of open spaces in cities, and said rather bluntly that in the present condition of affairs there were many other things more necessary than parks and playgrounds. In replying the lecturer did not argue the point, he merely said something to this effect:

"When the closed motor-car was only gradually coming into favour, many people criticised it as being unhealthy and uncomfortable, and a well-known writer on motoring when asked to reply to these criticisms simply said: 'It is my experience that everyone's second car is a closed car.' I can say something the same of those who are interested in Social Welfare; I find that the more experienced a worker is the more he is insistent on the need of open spaces."

Conditions To Remedy.

This was not an original discovery on the part of the lecturer. It is natural that when one interests himself in social problems for the first time he should be particularly anxious to try to remedy the condition of things that he sees crying out for help—hunger, sickness and the rest—but then after seeing for some time from close at hand how these grow and develop, he decides that they must be tackled at the root, and he looks beneath the surface to find what their causes are. It is then that he becomes convinced of the urgent need of more open spaces.

Poverty, sickness and crime are three main things that the Social Worker tries to combat. They are inextricably interwoven. Poverty is the cause of under-nourishment and of depression and discontent, and ill-health and, desperation easily follow. Anything that can relieve the misery of the poor and at the same time promote better health will make for happier citizens and less crime. Still more, anything that makes the young happier and healthier will promote greatly the peace and happiness of a whole generation.

When put in this light, the need of open spaces in a city seems obvious, but it requires a certain close acquaintance with the poor districts of any great city before it is appreciated to the full. Those who live in spacious homes must see overcrowding before they can realise the effect it must have on mind and body. When this overcrowding exists it is in the interests of the city in which it is found to counteract as far as possible its evil effects by providing the poorer citizens with places for rest and recreation.

Spots Within Easy Reach

Three kinds of open spaces are necessary: restful spots with trees and seats where the old can sit and the very young can be brought; playing fields for the young; and special playgrounds for children. Every enlightened city now regards the need of these as beyond question. The playing fields need not necessarily be actually in the midst of the residential district, but they should be near enough to be within reach of those who have little money for bus or tram fares. The other two should be in every residential area, and the poorer the area the greater the need of them. Children's playgrounds, especially, should be plentiful in crowded districts, because the young children for whom they are intended cannot go far to them. The ideal is that the playgrounds should be so placed that no child would have to walk more than half a mile to reach one. These are not fantastic standards to set up. Some day, perhaps, Hong Kong too will try to reach them.

He served on various sub-committees including the Interport Selection Committee. He is also a good bowls player and has represented the K. C. C. in the league games last summer.

ROYAL WEDDING PREPARATIONS

Extensive Activity

London, Nov. 27.

To-day was devoted to rehearsals and preparations for the Royal wedding which is to take place on Thursday.

Their Majesties went to Westminster Abbey this morning to watch a rehearsal of the ceremony, in which the eight bridesmaids took part, and later the Greek ceremony was duly rehearsed in the private chapel of the Palace, when the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina were present.

Throughout to-day hundreds of workmen were engaged in finishing the public stands, planting pylons along the route and decorating all these with bunting, in which the British colours blend with the blue and white of Princess Marina.

To-night in London the air was filled with voices as the elaborate broadcasting apparatus was being tested. Sixty loudspeakers, fourteen tons of Marconiophone gear, and 100 miles of wire have been fixed so that all the public along the route can be kept informed of the progress of the Royal procession and can hear clearly the broadcast of the wedding service inside the Abbey.

Practically every town of importance throughout Britain will also be equipped with Marconiophone apparatus and, of course, all broadcasts will go to the Empire, to many foreign countries and on to ships at sea.

The Royal wedding presents were on view at St. George's Palace to-day. They comprise a magnificent display. For weeks past they have been coming from all parts of the world and now number nearly one thousand. They include some superb jewels—part of the King's present was a necklace of 36 graduated diamonds, while one present from the Queen was a tiara and necklace of sapphires and diamonds. The Duke's present to the Princess also included a ruby and diamond necklace, with ear-rings, a pearl necklace and a diamond and ruby tiara.

In the B.B.C. Empire transmissions, the Royal ceremony will be broadcast between 10.45 and 11.45 (G.M.T.) on November 29, G.S.E. and G.S.G. Recordings will be broadcast during normal transmission at 15.00, 18.15, 23.00, and on November 30 at 08.15.—British Wireless.

KING WILL LEAD THE FLEET

Review At Spithead Next Year

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 12.

Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons that the King hoped to review the Fleet at Spithead on July 16 next year, or, if the weather was unfavourable, on July 17.

The King, in the yacht Victoria and Albert, would lead the Fleet to sea for exercises on the day after the review.

The King's review of the Fleet will be part of the Silver Jubilee celebrations. Sir Bolton explained in answer to Commander Marsden: "The ships which are to take part have not yet been finally selected," said the First Lord; "but, in addition to the Home and part of the Reserve Fleets, it is expected that certain units of the Mediterranean Fleet will join in."

Commander Marsden: Will there be special arrangements for the accommodation of members of this House to see the review?

Sir Bolton: I think my hon. friend had better apply through the usual channels.

(The last time the King inspected the Fleet at Spithead was in July 1924.)

EROS' CREATOR DEAD

Sir Alfred Gilbert

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 8.

Sir Alfred Gilbert, R.A., the sculptor and the creator of Eros in Piccadilly Circus, London, died in a London nursing home yesterday, aged 80. He had been ill since the middle of June.

Sir Alfred attained fame chiefly as the sculptor of Eros, the Shaftesbury Memorial statue, but that fame resulted in a self-imposed exile of 20 years on the Continent and the relinquishing of his association with England. He once referred to the statue as "both my crown of thorns and my crowning glory."

At the age of 78 the King conferred upon him a knighthood.

The dispute over Eros reached a head in 1907 when Sir Alfred came into conflict with the Board (now the Office of Works) over plans for the statue. Suddenly he left the country to live in Bruges, Belgium. Throwing up his commissions and vowing he would never return. In 1908 he resigned his membership of the Royal Academy, "Bolt it Down!"

When the Eros controversy flared up again in 1925 Gilbert wrote from the Continent suggesting that the statue should be bolted down and the hundreds of pounds worth of copper in it used for building a shelter for the homeless.

He returned to this country in 1926 and finished his masterpiece, started 30 years before—the tomb of the late Duke of Clarence (brother of King George) in the Albert Memorial Chapel at Windsor.

Then he began work on the memorial to Queen Alexandra at Marlborough House, which was unveiled by the King in June, 1932.

As a metal worker Gilbert was called "the modern Cellini," but he preferred to be known as a goldsmith rather than as a sculptor.

He was born in London in 1854, the son of Alfred Gilbert, a musician, and was educated in Paris.

His first important achievement was his "Mother and Child," then came his "Kiss of Victory," followed in 1883 by "Perseus Arming" in the style of the Florentine school.

Annually Refused. He was responsible for "Icarus," one of the finest designs ever fashioned by a sculptor. It was shown at the Royal Academy School in 1884.

When he left the country in 1907 for Bruges the Royal Academy, knowing that he was in want, granted him an annuity of £300. He never touched the money.

In 1926 the Royal Society of British Sculptors awarded him its gold medal.

From 1900 till 1909 Gilbert was Professor of Sculpture at the Royal Academy, and he was elected R. A. in 1902. But he threw up the former and resigned the latter. He married a Canadian woman, who died in 1916, leaving three sons.

NO SHORTAGE OF RICE

Missionaries Leave Chenchow

Sianktan, Hu, Nov. 3.

Human is again threatened with a Communist invasion. In spite of the reported victory of the Kuangtung armies against the Reds in the southern part of Kuangsi, when it was reported that 90,000 Reds tried to go into Kuangtung and over across south Hunan on their way to Szechuen, rumours are flying that south Hunan is again threatened and troops are being rushed south as fast as bus and boat can take them. There have been no buses for several days on the road from Changsha to Hengchow.

The water is so low that no launches can go south except the very small ones and they have been commandeered so that people have found it difficult to get to and from any of the points south.

Three places on the eastern side of the province seem likely to be attacked. Ping Chiang in the north-east has been unsettled for some days and a fear of attack on Changsha from that direction has been guarded against by sending soldiers. It is also reported that General Chiang Shue-liang is sending some soldiers to that area via Yochow.

The second place where there is much unrest with soldiers assembling is Tsaling in Yiu Hsien and the third is the extreme south-eastern section where the defeated Reds expect to get into Hunan for their trip across the province to Kweichow and Szechuen. General Wang, who has been located in Chenchow for some time, has been transferred to the Hengchow-Leiyang area to stop any movement, should the Reds get into south Hunan. General Liu and many soldiers are in the Chenchow area.

Missionaries Leave. The women and children of the Presbyterian Mission at Chenchow have been ordered to Hengchow while only Dr. R. Johnston and Mr. W. T. Blackstone remain.

It is too early yet to know what the outcome will be but many Chinese are saying that if and when the Reds get into Hunan there will be no fighting as they will be permitted to cross the province just as the former contingent last August did. This does not seem so certain for there is certainly more troop movements now than then and the reports that Kuangtung is sending soldiers to the Hunan border seems to indicate that there is preparation for fighting.

Recent rains have made the winter crops look better and gardeners smile again and say "this rain is raining gold." There has not been sufficient to raise the river and enable the launches to go more quickly.

In spite of the bad harvest this year the prices of rice keep quite low, though dearer than a year ago at this time. It is reported that Hunan does not lack rice, but there is much suffering because so many of the tenant farmers did not harvest enough rice to feed their families and there is little work to do. Some in the south have found relief in working on the railroad and the airfields at Hengchow and Chenchow. It is bound to be a hard winter for many and business is not good.

LOAN INSTALMENTS PAID

Nanking, Nov. 21.

A total of $1,710,399.08 (equivalent to $114,886.10/-) towards the amortization of the loan obligations of the Nanking-Shanghai and Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway Administrations, has been remitted to the British and Chinese Corporation, it is learnt.

The payment includes $89,774 for the loan instalment due May 18, 1934 by the Nanking-Shanghai Railway Administration; and $45,112.10/- for the 33rd instalment due by the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway Administration. These figures also include interest and bank commission.—Kuo Min.

RED CAPITAL CAPTURED

Some Remarkable Finds

Shanghai, Nov. 24.

Interesting details of the organization of the Communist capital of Juichin, in Southern Kuangsi, which was captured by the Government forces on November 10 after long operations, are given in Chinese reports from Amoy which describe the Red stronghold, believed to be one of the strongest in the country.

When the Government troops entered the city, not only was a well-organized Soviet Government in operation with many efficient departments headed by well-known Reds, but the city itself had been converted into a powerful military base. Juichin for six years was the capital of the "Soviet Government of China" with Mao Chieh-tung as chairman. Under him was the executive committee of the Communist headquarters with Po Ku as chairman and other departments included the Central Military Council headed by Chu Teh, and the Kuangsi, Hunan and Szechuen headquarters of an organization recently known as the "anti-bandit force."

Militarily, the Soviet organization included a military academy, a school of science, a wireless school and a public health school. An arsenal and a power and light plant were in operation and oil depots were discovered. There was also an aerodrome but no machines were discovered.

Rehabilitation Measures

With the capture of Juichin, which is believed to have shattered the power of the Communists in Kuangsi, the question of rehabilitation measures arises and leads the "China Times," a local Chinese newspaper, to urge that these be expedited to settle not only the situation in Kuangsi but the entire problem of Communism.

"The successes of the Government forces in Kuangsi have been proved by facts. However, the maintenance of this victory cannot depend entirely on the success of military operations, but practical and effective measures for the rehabilitation of the recaptured territory should be taken immediately," it states.

"Dispatches from Nanchang state that General Chiang Kai-shek has given instructions for the six districts of Ningtu, Shih-cheng, Hsingkuo, Juichin, Yuntu and Huichang to be converted into special administrative areas. These districts have been in the hands of the Reds for more than six or seven years and have suffered severely. Special political bureaux will be established for each area and rehabilitation measures will be pushed under the direction of the Kuangsi provincial government. This indicates that the government is certainly taking immediate steps to remedy the situation there."

Relief For Farmers

"The situation in the former Communist territory is totally different from the situation in any other part of the country. The problem of providing relief for farmers, reestablishing agricultural work and reorganizing the economic system cannot be solved by ordinary administrative methods. It must be dealt with by a special organization."

"From past experience we feel that the 'first' thing is to have definite plans, such as a special land policy, to assist in the reestablishment of the agricultural organization. On the other hand, special consideration should be given to all other problems and appropriate measures taken to remedy the situation. It is essential for the success of the plan that political and military measures should go hand in hand."

DISADVANTAGES OF CEMENT MONOPOLY

Nanking, Nov. 21.

That the Kuangtung Provincial Government be instructed to discontinue the official monopoly over the cement trade is urged by the Kuangtung Cement Merchants Association in a petition to the Ministry of Finance and Industry. Since enforcement of the official control, the message points out, the interests of the merchants have been adversely affected.—Kuo Min.

PARITY OF DEFENCE

Japan's requests for naval "equality" at naval conferences do not mean parity. Her equality plea is very much like that of Germany's—a demand for recognition of her right to equal arms, and not a demand for the same amount of arms. This policy of "face saving" is often complicated by open diplomacy.

The conception is one of prestige, and not of needs. The Japanese delegation objects to ratios because "they hurt the self-respect of certain nations." It is really the publicity about ratios that hurts, for there is a surviving belief that the greatness and honour of a nation somehow depend on the amount of weapons it possesses. The adjustment of naval questions would be far easier if it were not for that false pride and for the fanfare that attends international conferences and formal treaties.

Do not suppose that this false pride is a monopoly of the Japanese. "Britannia rules the waves" is no testament of meekness. Nor is the American slogan, "A navy second to none." Parity with Britain, for the United States, has always been psychological rather than practical. The United States needs neither the same kind nor the same size navy. Japan's needs are still different. This, of course, is on the assumption that "needs" apply to the protection of home waters and the maintenance of supplies. The Washington and London treaties set up the 5-5-3 ratios that provide strengths which fulfil this conception of "needs." Defensive supremacy is given to each signatory. It is estimated that this ratio, in the case of Japan, even makes her stronger in her own waters than a combination of British and American navies.

Thus Japan already has more than equality as measured by that yardstick of security of defence. This kind of equality is the soundest basis for naval limitation. If needs are expanded indefinitely by nationalistic demands for a navy that would have supremacy not merely at home but on all the seven seas, then the sky is literally the limit. Fluctuating factors and hypothetical requirements that afford no foundation for agreement are inevitably brought in in any attempt to make each navy adequate to protect national commerce. Uncertain and theoretical as it is, this last yardstick, has entered largely into American estimates of naval needs.

In Japan's case, it is probable that the determination of her naval policy has been largely governed by similar theories resultant on her new trade expansion. If so, it emphasizes the necessity for trying to clarify national purposes and maritime law, so that the various navies will not be expected to sustain claims that may be preposterous, and conflicting. But the question of prestige is probably more vital for Japan. She feels no doubt, that if she could say to China, "See, I rank with the United States and Great Britain; I have the same naval standing," her position in Asiatic eyes would be improved.

Perhaps the adoption of defensive security and the abandonment of the yardstick of tonnage will serve as the key to the solution. Japan might be accorded the right to increase certain submarine and

LIEUT. DORSEY KILLED IN SHANGHAI

Boeng Plane Demonstration Ends In Tragedy

Shanghai, Nov. 28.

Lieut. Edward Dorsey, the young American speed-stunt flier, lost his life at 6.25 p.m. to-day at Hunjiao aerodrome when demonstrating a Boeng fighting plane.

The plane was flying low when it tipped over, the wing touching the ground. The flier was instantly killed.

A "Reuter" cable of November 19 stated that after being lost for three nights and two days virtually without food in the vicinity of Ningpo, Lieut. Dorsey, landed at Hunjiao aerodrome on that day physically and mentally exhausted.

He gave a demonstration of the fast Boeng monoplane at Nanchang and hopped off for Shanghai at 3 p.m. on November 18, but due to dense fog he lost his bearings half an hour later over Hangchow Bay which he thought was the Taihu Lakes. Flying on he came to a mountainous country and he decided to land, which he did beautifully in a small cleared patch.

Unable to speak Chinese, it was impossible to learn his whereabouts and he was forced to remain until early on November 19 when he hopped off. Following the coast line he reached the aerodrome at Hunjiao in a state bordering on collapse.

NEW MEANS TO SAVE LIFE

Blood Transfusion Experiments

Moscow.

Thanks to the persistent work of a number of scientists of the Institute of Blood Transfusion, transfusion of blood has become a customary method of treatment at the majority of Soviet medical institutions.

Blood transfusion is mostly an urgent measure and, therefore, the Institute faced the problem of preservation of blood for a lengthy period.

The Institute already possesses a liquid through the use of which blood preserved for 15 to 16 days can be efficiently used for blood transfusion. The Institute has used blood preserved in this way in over a thousand cases.

Experiments have also proved that blood taken from a person suffering from malaria, when preserved in this liquid, loses on the fourth or fifth day its contagious properties and can be applied for medical purposes.

Of Great Value

The scientists Brukhonenko, Yankovsky, and others, working at the Institute, have also discovered a series of specific blood-coagulating preparations, which are of great scientific value. These preparations will be largely applied in surgery as a component part of blood-stilling dressings.

In addition to this series of preparations of an opposite nature, preventing blood coagulation has been elaborated.

In close connection with the problem of blood coagulation, the workers of the Institute are working upon the problem of artificial blood circulation.

Dr. Brukhonenko has invented a special apparatus, the "Autojector," representing an artificial heart, able to regulate the blood circulation in a living organism. Very complicated operations on the heart are made at the Institute with the aid of this "Autojector," when the heart of the animal experimented upon is "switched out."

Successful results of these experiments open widest prospects of curing heart diseases by surgical methods.

U.S. POLICIES UNCHANGED

For Eastern Stand

Washington, Nov. 19.

The United States will adhere to their historic policies of peace, the open door and avoidance of entangling commitments, irrespective of the alignment of other powers in the Far East, it was learned to-day.

Officials of the Department of State recently re-examined the Far Eastern policy of the United States in all its aspects and from all angles, including their attitude towards Philippine independence according to information obtained from authoritative sources.

British inquiries regarding the course of action to be pursued by the United States if Japan denounces the naval treaties were responsible for the thorough searching of policy. It was indicated that the State Department considered the British inquiries in the light of possible overtures regarding an Anglo-American accord, in which the United States would give definite commitments in return for British co-operation in maintaining the status quo in the Far East, both politically and navally.

It was strongly indicated, however, that the United States will stand by its traditional policy of avoiding entangling alliances, regardless of whether Great Britain chooses to align herself with the United States or to seek conciliation with Japan.

American officials recognize the perplexity of British statesmen with regard to withdrawal of the United States from the Philippine Islands, but consider that political withdrawal does not imply alteration of other Oriental policies of the Washington Government.

Attention also was drawn to the fact that the rights of the United States to maintain a naval base in the Philippines are specifically provided in the act granting freedom to the islands.

WORKS OF ART

Treasures Concealed In Godown

Shanghai, Nov. 21.

China's greatest contribution to cultural advancement during the past 20 years has been the opening of museums to scholars and all generally interested, said Dr. John C. Ferguson, the well-known authority on things Chinese and a former adviser to the President of China, in an address yesterday before the American Women's Club.

Dr. Ferguson, whose topic was "Present Tendencies in Chinese Studies," said that in 1914, when the Government first brought cultural objects from the Jehol Palace and placed them in the Peiping palaces, available for scholarly attention, there was opened an era that had brought the Chinese and the Western civilizations closer together. Now, students, by actually viewing objects and not spending from four to five years in reading historical facts, could see the similarity that exists throughout the world in things artistic.

Urging more museums, and praising those already established, Dr. Ferguson pointed out that in Peiping and Nanking, as well as elsewhere, the cultural objects may be viewed, but that here in Shanghai the great boxes of treasures brought from Peiping are concealed in a go-down in the French Concession—a waste to cultural advancement.

Growth of Culture

Dr. Ferguson outlined the growth of China's cultural development. When he first came here, studying historical tomes was about as interesting as reading a new issue of the Oxford Dictionary, but now, with some of the rarest treasures of the world before the eyes, historical research not only was brighter but much more accurate. It was difficult to reconstruct the ancient life of China without the aid of ancient bronze and jade. The opening of museums also had brought forth many objects formerly hidden both by Government and private collectors, who were afraid of "disappearance by strategy."

Chinese artistic work greatly needed the assistance of a scientific system, which Dr. Ferguson described as already aiding in the correct cataloguing of museum pieces. In closing, Dr. Ferguson praised the work of the Academia Sinica, the Harvard Yenching, and the College of Chinese Studies, as among the institutions furthering cultural advancement to-day. He said: "The work is not only spreading knowledge, but it is putting Chinese culture on the way to appeal and to be related better to Western culture."

JUDGE-MAKING RECORDS

Whole of Supreme Court

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 12.

Lord Sankey is well on the way to becoming a good second to the late Lord Halsbury as a judge-maker.

At one period Lord Halsbury had the distinction of having appointed practically the whole of the Supreme Court.

In Lord Sankey's comparatively short tenure of the Woolsack—less than 5½ years—twelve new judges have been appointed, and more are an early probability.

In 6½ years Lord Loreburn was responsible for fourteen appointments, Lord Cave for twelve in about 4½ years, and Lord Haldane for eleven in less than four years.

Inner Temple Judges

Not long ago Mr. Justice Charles stated in court that he was "still on the twig." He is now no longer the only High Court judge thus situated. Both the new judges join him on the same perch.

Two other judicial bachelors are the Lord Chancellor and Lord Blanesburgh.

Mr. Justice Singleton and Mr. Justice Porter both belong to the Inner Temple, which now claims 17 of the full number of 34 Supreme Court judges, including Lord Sankey.

The Middle Temple has seven, and Lincoln's Inn nine. Lord Justice Greer is the solitary representative of Gray's.

For obvious reasons all the Equity judges are Lincoln's Inn men. Mr. Justice Swift, however, though he is a Common Law judge, is a Bencher of the Chancery Inn.

Politics And The Law

The Mosley libel action was an illustration of how advocacy cuts across personal political feelings.

Although Mr. Norman Brkett, a Liberal, was defending a Liberal organ, Sir Patrick Hastings, who was briefed for the Fascist leader, can hardly shade the political convictions of his client.

Sir Patrick was Attorney-General in the first Labour Government.

Perhaps the most famous "instance" was in one of the Marconi cases which came to the Old Bailey.

Counsel for Sir Rufus Isaacs, then the Liberal Attorney-General, were Sir Edward Carson and Mr. F. E. Smith.

TERMINATION OF NAVAL TREATY

Japan To Act Independently Of Other Powers

Tokyo, Nov. 28.
It is authoritatively understood that the Japanese Government is awaiting replies from France and Italy before acting on the termination of the Washington Naval Treaty.

Even in case the replies are in the negative, Japan will be notifying termination of the treaty to the signatories independently of the others.

ITALY'S ATTITUDE

Rome, Nov. 27.
Official circles here are of the opinion that Italy's reply to the Japanese suggestion that Italy join with Japan in denouncing the Washington Naval Treaty will almost certainly be negative.

It is believed that the invitation to France to take a similar step will also meet with a cool reception.

It is thought that Japan is averse to acting alone in the abrogation of the Treaty and that she may even reconsider her view.

point and accept the compromise plan offered by Great Britain.

In view of the state of the exchequer, it is recognised here that the Naval Powers could easily out-build Italy if fleet limitations were abolished.

FRUITLESS TALK

London, Nov. 27.
Mr. Matsudaira, the Japanese Ambassador, conferred for 90 minutes with Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, to-day. No change in policy was intimated by the Japanese representative and the conversations were, apparently, without result.

It is believed, here that France is unlikely to join Japan in denouncing the Washington Naval Treaty, despite Germany's pocket battleships and Italy's new construction of powerful fleet units.

The French position at the end of 1933 will be much the same as it is to-day, relatively, the navy possessing about 650,000 tons compared to Italy's 425,000 tons.

RECOVERY IN FRANCE

Premier Appeals For Support

Paris, November 27.
Premier Flandin of France to-day broadcast an announcement that a virtual French version of the N.R.A. had been launched.

He appealed for a nation-wide rally round the business chiefs, as Britain had rallied around her National Government and the United States had rallied round President Roosevelt.

M. Flandin asserted that production must be adapted to consumption and the process of deflation must be ended in France.

A committee of experts should decide, he said, what industries were costing the community more than they brought in; and those which should be would be protected.

A great colonial plan would probably emerge from the French Imperial Conference meeting in the next few days and better commercial credits would be extended to the retail trade, the Premier promised.

ARREST OF PULPIT ORATORS

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 28, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, November 28.
Developments in the case brought by Police Inspector Bony against the weekly journal "Gringoire" for recovery of damages for alleged defamation of character has taken quite an unexpected course.

The proprietors of "Gringoire" did not content themselves with the defence as expected but led a most vigorous attack on Bony with new charges threatening to be more damaging than the first. Defendants produced a certain Mademoiselle Cottillon as witness who in the course of her evidence accused Bony of having about two years ago organised a systematic blackmail whereby she was frightened into parting with various sums totalling francs 3,000,000. One payment alone was francs 600,000. This was possible because years ago Mlle. Cottillon ran away from her guardian who reported to the police. Mlle. Cottillon was at length caught, photographed and returned. In February 1932 after Mlle. Cottillon had grown up, demand of large sums began to be lodged, the threat being that unless it was paid her photograph and story would be published "Gringoire" asserts that they are able to produce many similar cases of blackmail attributable to Bony.

Questions Affecting Germany To Be Raised

London, Nov. 28.

The suggestion that anything in the nature of an ultimatum has been delivered to Germany on the subject of armaments is discounted in Parliamentary circles.

It is believed that Mr. Stanley Baldwin in his speech in the House of Commons to-day will indicate that the British Government is viewing with growing concern the position in international armaments, reiterating that while the British air policy, announced last July, is intended to be a five year plan, there will be no hesitation on the Government's part to accelerate the extension of the air force should events occur rendering a speeding up absolutely necessary.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in moving an amendment to the address, is expected to base his case for increased British defences substantially on increasing armaments in Germany, particularly in the air.

OFFICIAL CALLS

Berlin, Nov. 27.

The British Ambassador to Germany, Sir Eric Phipps, visited Baron von Neurath to-day, and according to an official German communiqué, communicated in the friendliest manner the contents of statements to be made in the House of Commons to-morrow in the course of the debate upon Imperial defence.

It was at first reported that the Ambassador had seen the Chancellor-President, Herr Hitler, but this was denied later.

Sir John Simon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, simultaneously with the British Ambassador's call upon Baron von Neurath, received the German Ambassador in London.

These developments come on the heels of a visit to London of Herr Hitler's personal envoy, Herr von Ribbentrop, who, a few days ago, concluded a week's visit in England.

HAPPY END TO CONFLICT

Point To Be Debated

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 28, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, November 28.

The "happy ending" to a conflict between deputy Goy and the city councillor Monnier on the one side and the extreme nationalist Franklin Bouillon on the other that arose through the latter accusing the former of betrayal of France by seeking a personal talk with Herr Hitler has now taken a curiously gratifying form.

Next Friday there will be an extraordinary session at Faubourg debating Club when Goy and Monnier will speak on the theme of "why we went to Germany: Our talk with Hitler." The deputies Franklin Bouillon and Castagne have been invited to attend and make reply. Then follows a general debate when the blind deputy Scapini, who lost his sight during the war, and Colonel Picot, chairman of the Union of Blinded War Veterans and General Puderoux will speak, the subject of discussion being "were Goy and Monnier right or wrong in speaking to Hitler? Does Germany want war or peace? Can French and German war veterans enforce peace?"

BRITISH FINANCE

London, Nov. 27.
Exchequer returns for the past week show that during the current financial year the total ordinary revenue, exclusive of self-balancing revenue, amounts at November 24 to £238,816,051, which is £2,044,652 less than the amount collected at the corresponding date last year.

Expenditure for the same period, exclusive of self-balancing items, was £239,052,342, which exceeds the amount expended at the corresponding date last year by £239,052,342.

HARD TASK FOR POLICE

Mass Demonstration By Students

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 28, 4.30 p.m.)

Vienna, Nov. 28.

The anti-Czech student demonstrations which began on Monday as a protest against the forcible appropriation by the Czech authorities of a German Prague university's historical insignia were continued on Tuesday on a larger scale and at times got beyond police control according to press reports here on Wednesday morning.

It appears that the demonstrators who numbered upwards of 5,000 made several unsuccessful attempts to break through the police cordon thrown around the Czech legation and then proceeded to the quarter where the big newspaper plants are located and vented their rage by invading the administrative offices of "Wiener Tag" which is said to be closely affiliated to the Czech foreign office, as well as the business offices of the Jewish papers "Neupresse, Neue Wiener Tageblatt and Neues Wiener Journal" where furniture, was smashed and window panes broken before they were dislodged by the police.

Numerous groups of demonstrators continued to march through the streets till late in the afternoon, some cheering Schuschnigg and Starheimberg while others shouted "Hell Hitler." Time and again the students broke out into melody of the Austrian National Hymn but there appeared to be a notable lack of unanimity as regards the text, some singing words of the Austrian anthem others singing the German anthem "Deutschland Ueber Alles" which happens to be set to music in the same tune. After dark the police gradually restored order.

A resolution was passed by the joint meeting of all right wing students organisations which condemns the seizure of the German insignia by the Czech authorities as "the humiliation for all German speaking people."

JAPANESE SILK GOODS

Import Quota Demand

London, Nov. 27.

A demand for a quota against imports of Japanese silk goods was made to-day by a deputation from the Silk Association of Great Britain at a meeting of the Conservative members of the House of Commons.

The deputation pointed out that Japanese silk goods, were being sold at two shillings one penny a yard, duty paid, against the four shillings three pence finished production costs of the British article.

It stated the silk industries of Europe had secured an international agreement under which quotas should be based on the figures of 1930-32, inclusive.

It is understood that the facts will be reported to the Government with the request that Mr. Neville Chamberlain, and Mr. Walter Runciman should receive the deputation on this subject.

Paris, November 28.

A full report of the lively comment on the speech delivered by Hess, Hitler's deputy on Tuesday on the first anniversary of "relax and keep fit" movement was found in all sections of the French Press. "Matin" for instance prints an account under the headline "Fuhrer's right-hand man again declares for peace" and puts in heavy type the words spoken by Hess "we don't want war. We will do everything we can to preserve peace."

SPEED UP THE BREAKFAST

A recent cookery research, carried out by the staff of the Good Housekeeping Institute under the supervision of the Director, has proved that

1. Breakfast is 30 per cent. faster by gas than by any other means.
2. Where gas takes 5 minutes to boil water, the next quickest fuel takes 8 minutes.

In a word the use of gas means punctual breakfasts—no grumbles—no delays. Gas cookers give the speediest service. And speed is what is wanted in preparing most meals—breakfast in particular.

NEW JAPANESE PROPOSALS

Next Step In The Naval Talks

London, Nov. 28.

It is expected that the new Japanese proposals, or adaptation of the original Japanese proposals will be submitted as the next step in the naval talks.

During yesterday's meeting between Sir John Simon, Mr. Matsudaira and Admiral Yamamoto, the Japanese indicated that they had a new plan which it is understood contains technical details with figures showing how the original Japanese proposals for parity and global tonnage can be fitted into the British suggestions for qualitative limitation, non-fortification, pacific notification and construction programmes.

The plan will probably be formally submitted at an Anglo-Japanese meeting later in the week. In the meanwhile Sir John Simon will probably see the American delegate, Mr. Norman Davis.

LITHUANIAN CONTROL OF LAWYERS

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 28, 4.30 p.m.)

Kovno, Nov. 28.

With the object of distributing Lithuanian lawyers in equal proportions through the country and decreasing the percentage of residents in the capital of Kovno, the Lithuanian government has recently passed a law giving the minister of justice the right to determine the dwelling place of the lawyers. Great indignation is now prevailing in the Jewish minority owing to the fact that the Jewish lawyers are hardest hit by the new law no less than 25 of 28 lawyers who must leave Kovno being Jews.

ARMY PAY IN HONG KONG

House Of Commons Question

London, Nov. 27.

Asked at what rate to the colonial allowances admissible to the British forces in Hong Kong were fixed, Mr. Douglas Hacking, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Home Office, in the House of Commons to-day replied that the allowance was issued in dollars and was fixed in relation to other factors besides the rate of exchange.

The rates of allowances were liable to variation if an appreciable alteration occurred in the rate of exchange which was not counteracted by any other factor. The Hong Kong dollar, which stood at seventeen pence when the rates were first fixed, had recently appreciated considerably and increased rates of allowance in Hong Kong had been approved for all ranks as from October 1, last, said Mr. Hacking.

HOME FOOTBALL

Forecast For Saturday's Games

(BY "LEFT OUT")

With the Second Round of the Football Association Cup taking place on December 8, there will be a full programme of matches in all divisions of the English League on Saturday.

Will Sunderland be able to take full points from Wednesday and retain their lead? Stoke, playing at home, is expected to account for Preston, and the Arsenal, (who had such appalling luck last week, when the game had to be abandoned, with the score 5-2 in their favour, against Chelsea) are fancied when they receive the Wolves.

The leaders in the other divisions should experience no difficulty in overcoming their opposition.

HOME FOOTBALL GOSSIP

By The Air Mail

Luton have a goalkeeper more than they require, and George Harford is anxious for a move, since he frankly admits that he sees no hope of ousting Joe Coen while the ex-Bournemouth player is shaping so well.

Harford, who has been with the Hatters for five seasons, has been very unfortunate, for in two or three seasons he has suffered at the outset some injury that has prevented him obtaining his place in the first team straightway. This season he had a fall in the street and fractured a bone in the right hand, and with Freddy secured to deputise, and then Coen playing so well that he had to be engaged, Harford recovered to find himself in the cold.

Wyrexham had to pay only a fee of a few pounds for what Leicester City paid to the Hatters for Archie Gardiner last February. This hefty player will do the Welsh club's attack a lot of good, so much so, indeed, that they aren't likely to miss even the brilliant Tom Bamford.

Mr. Harold Wightman likes the young "uns. Against Cambridge University he invited a lad of eighteen years playing in junior football in Luton to visit the Varsity. Hugh Billington was the youngster, and he scored the Hatters' only goal. He "was" promptly signed on League forms. He is a well-built youngster, and can play "anywhere inside."

Bristol Invaders

Bristol Rovers are continuing their run of successes. And just when the outlook appears brighter they are forced to do without the services of Wipfler, their season's find at outside-left.

Wipfler actually played for some time against Millwall with a small bone in the leg just below the knee split across. He was in collision with the Millwall goalkeeper in scoring Bristol Rovers' second goal at the Den and felt a pain just below the knee. He refused to leave the field and continued after massage. After the game he was given permission to remain in London with friends and by the time he returned on the Monday the pain had increased so greatly that he was taken to hospital. An X-ray revealed the source of the trouble. The bone had started to weld together again and it had to be re-broken for setting properly.

There is no truth in the rumour that Bristol City have sent a message of congratulation and

SCHOOL CRICKET

Queen's Beat Ellis Kadoorie

The Queen's College cricket eleven defeated a team from the Ellis Kadoorie Indian School by 4 wickets on the Indian Recreation Club ground at Sookunpoo yesterday.

A feature of the game was the all-round display of A. R. Abbas who took 4 wickets for 17 runs and scored 37 not out. D. Singh was in good form with the bat knocking up 62 at a fast pace.

The Indian School team had the first knock which realised 105 runs. To the total Naranjan Singh was the chief contributor, scoring 25. K. M. Rungiah scored 24 while L. H. Esmail was the only other batsman to reach double figure. M. Cassin and A. R. Abbas did all the damage, the former securing 3 wickets for 23 runs.

With four wickets in hand, the Queen's passed the School's total with 164 runs D. Singh and A. R. Abbas being the chief scorers. Y. H. Esmail bowled well to take 4 wickets for 47 runs.

thanks to the Rovers on their two most recent successes against Millwall and Coventry. But the fact remains that in defeating both these clubs the Rovers have done the City two "good turns" for it has narrowed the gap between the erstwhile promotionists and made the position more open.

The aftermath of the Bristol City and Southend United game was a cripple list of six players for the Bristol club. This left them with an unfamiliar team for the visit to Luton Town. Gollidge and Banfield were taken into the League side for the first time this season, and there was a general reshuffle.

The greatest loss through the injuries is Brinton and Morgan, the two half-backs who have played a big part in their club's revival. Brinton will not be able to play for some weeks and Morgan may not be available for some time.

The transfer of Stabb and Steele from Torquay United to Notts County was completed in the office of the station superintendent on Temple Meads platform, Bristol.

Manchester City have made discreet inquiries about another Bristol City player. The time is not ripe for naming him, but he has been at Ashton Gate for 18 months and he did not cost the Bristol club a penny.

BILLIARDS

T. Newman's Games With S. Smith

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 8.

The series of games, each of 1,000 points up, in which T. Newman conceded S. Smith 250 points in each game was concluded at Thurston's Hall in Leicester Square last Saturday, when Newman was successful by 17 games to seven.

With only two games remaining to be played on Saturday to complete the series, Newman held a lead of 16 games to six in his match with Smith, so that the result was not in doubt, but interest was well maintained. Smith had the satisfaction of winning the game in the afternoon by 368. He scored 750 for an average of 68, while Newman made 634 for an average of 58.

A good deal of safety play caused the scoring at first to be slow. Smith, however, secured an opening after his opponent had missed an ordinary losing hazard, but lost position and failed to make an all-round cannon when he had scored 63. From that point both players scored freely.

Newman gave a delightful display while making a break of 500. He varied his methods in an attractive way, but made only short runs of cannons. Most of the points were obtained by accurate top-of-the-table play, his control of the run of the balls being so good that he had very few difficulties to overcome. Smith had most of the play afterwards. When Newman missed a thin cushion cannon Smith soon found his best form, and, scoring largely by accurate hazard play, he improved his position with a sound break of 385. Newman's highest run in the remainder of the play was 69, but Smith continued to play well. He scored easily again by open methods in a break of 197, and then went to game with a break of 58.

The result was:—S. Smith (received 250), 1,000; T. Newman 634. Newman won a good game at night by 282, having an average of 100; while Smith's average for his total of 483 was 48. Newman made more use of close-cannon play than he had done earlier in the day. A break of 244 was composed largely of a clever run of 83 cannons, but in another break of 282 his chief run of cannons was 38. Newman continued to show splendid form. Scoring by

LOCAL RUGBY

Club Beats Navy

Played on the Club ground yesterday, the Club beat the Navy in an evenly-matched rugby encounter by 13 points to nil.

The score is not a true reflection of the strength of the teams. The Navy had much the better of the argument in the first half, but the Club's halves were working very well and stopped many a naval raid.

In the second half, the Navy again forced the pace, but it was not long before the practice which the Club team had put in became evident and they emerged winners by two goals and a try.

SQUASH RACKETS

The Bath Club Cup

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Nov. 12.

Playing at home the Conservative Club beat Prince's by three matches to none, and it seems clear that unless Prince's bestir themselves they will be relegated to the second division, which would be rather unfortunate, as they were only promoted this year.

In the first-string match D. M. Backhouse (Conservative Club) beat G. R. H. Nugent rather easily, Nugent only being able to win five aces in each game. Nugent recently dislocated one of his toes playing, and whether this had anything to do with it or not, he was certainly playing far below his best form. He started, encouragingly enough, with a run of four, but Backhouse put him out with a ball which clung to the back wall, and Nugent proceeded to put two services on to the tin and to miss the next one completely, so that Backhouse needed to make only one forehand kill in order to draw level. Nugent won one more ace, and then, after two blank hands, Backhouse made a run of five, hitting some magnificent forehand kills which gave one to think once more what a fine rackets player he might make. Nugent made a lot of mistakes in the early part of the second game, while Backhouse was mixing his game astutely keeping the ball close to the side wall and after hitting a length several times introducing a timely backhand drop which caught Nugent on the wrong foot more than once. After being led 6-1, however, Nugent suddenly played some really good stuff. He made a run of four, in which Backhouse did all the work, only to be beaten by a drop at the end of a long rally, and then Nugent put himself out by hitting an easy backhand on to the tin, and Backhouse went out with a run of three, the last two shots being a forehand down the left side wall, the left-hander's pet shot, and an unexpected drop.

The third game was a little longer than the others, Nugent actually leading 4-3, but even so he was never accurate enough in the forecourt, and Backhouse, by really clever alteration of the pace, always had his opponent in two minds as to when to run forward for a drop or when to anticipate a kill.

In the second string match G. D'O. Sheppard (Conservative Club) had little difficulty in disposing of R. Still, who had only one effective shot—a cross-court kill—and never seemed to know what to do with Sheppard's drops even when he reached them. Prince's might, however, have won the third string match had not P. C. Samuelson always contrived to get behind H. W. Backhouse so that he blocked himself and had twice as much running to do.

PAPER MILLS DOING WELL

Nanking, Nov. 16.

There are at present 16 paper mills in Shanghai, Hangchow and Fukien which turn out their products by machinery. It is learnt at the Ministry of Industry. Due to the popularity of the Native Goods Movement, these mills are doing good business.

more open methods he added a break of 194, but Smith gave two excellent displays while making breaks of 150 and 184. Newman, however, had the better of the play. He made a run of 31 close cannons in a break of 185, and then finished off the game with a run of 68.

The result was:—T. Newman, 1,000; S. Smith (received 250), 733.

GENERAL SMUTS

And South African Protectorates

(Special Air-Mail Service).

London, Nov. 12.

General Smuts's speech caused some sensation and even left Mr. Thomas a little tongue-tied. For, contrary to expectation, he referred to the Native Protectorates and, contrary to his own custom, he used a threat. His argument was as follows:—Economic conditions in the Protectorates were deteriorating, but the Union gave them freedom of trade. There was, however, an agitation growing in the Union which demanded that Great Britain should cede the Protectorates. Moreover, in this restrictive world the freedom of trade which they were enjoying with the Union might one day end and the Protectorates might be treated as "foreign territories." In brief, he threatened economic pressure.

South Africans here who are interested in the problem of the Protectorates say that his argument, logical enough in its conclusion, proceeds from two false premises. Conditions in the Protectorates, they say, are in point of fact, improving and will greatly improve if the financial and administrative reforms proposed by Sir Alan Pim, who in these last two years has toured the territories and reported to the Dominions Office, are carried out.

The Protectorates' Grievances

These South Africans also question "freedom of trade" between the Protectorates and the Union. They admit that they are under the same Customs union, but hold that this is partly why the Protectorates are poor. They have to pay for the South African protective policy. Bechuanaland is put forward as suffering most, for her chief export is native scrub cattle, and the Union, to encourage white farmers' production, bars the import of cattle under a certain weight.

It is felt by these critics that the Union could do little more to worsen the position of the Protectorates, and that if, as the Inter-Parliamentary Committee of last August hoped, a loan is given to the Protectorates they would have a fair chance of independent self-development.

CHINESE SOLD BY CROOKS

"Slave" Smuggling In Sacks

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Nov. 8.

A gruesome story of how a party of Chinese were smuggled into the United States from the British West Indies by a gang of crooks, who "sold" them at large prices to their relatives, or to laundrymen as slaves, was revealed to-day.

Acting on a hint, State police, headed by detectives from the Federal Narcotic Bureau, forced their way at dawn to-day into an old-fashioned estate at Keywood, New Jersey.

In the cellars of the house their attention was attracted by low groans. They battered in a door and found eighteen Chinese, trussed like rabbits and scarcely able to speak from lack of food and water.

Most of the prisoners knew no English, but two of them, who had attended an American college, said that some weeks ago thirty-eight Chinese had contracted with smugglers to be transported from Trinidad to America, where their relatives would ransom each of them for $300.

Herded like cattle in the hold of a small cargo-boat, the party set out and were landed at a small port in Virginia. Three of their number who fell sick on the way were tossed overboard.

On American soil the Chinese were sewed up in potato sacks, loaded on a truck and taken to the mansion in New Jersey.

24d A Day In Wages

After lengthy negotiations seventeen of them were redeemed at the price agreed but the remaining eighteen could find no sponsors, and were left in the cellar while the gang sought Chinese laundrymen to whom they could sell their victims.

It appears that there is a regular traffic in such "slaves," who are made to work in underground laundries for 10d a day, of which 7d is kept by their owner until the ransom has been paid off—a matter of years. The police are now searching for the leaders of the gang.

CURRENT NEWS FROM CHINA

FIFTH PLENARY SESSION

South-west Demands

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 28. As the fifth plenary session of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee will be held in Nanking on December 10, Mr. Hsiao Fu Chen, leading member of the South-west Political Council, told newspaper men to-day that the leader here have no new resolutions to be submitted to that session but adhere to their circular telegrams of September 8 and 25.

These two telegrams are most sweeping and demand the reversal of the present pro-Japanese policy, as well as the recovery of the lost provinces. The South-west leaders also insist that the six points in these two telegrams be formed part of the agenda as circulated to all Kuomintang organs at home and abroad on August 15. This question is still pending.

After declaring that these points are intended for the salvation of the Kuomintang and the country, Mr. Hsiao next admitted that Dr. Wang Chung Wei, Judge of the Permanent Court of International Justice, had left for Nanking from Shanghai in an attempt to mediate Canton and Nanking. Mr. Hsiao said no telegram had been received from Dr. Wang Chung Wei but believes he will pay another visit to Canton.

Dwelling on the Communist battles in Kwangsi, Mr. Hsiao said that the Kwangsi forces are fighting the Reds at Fuchuen and Hohsen and that the Kwangsi forces are fighting the Reds at Fuchuen and Hohsen and that General Li Chung Jen, the Kwangsi leader has no time to come to Canton. Mr. Hsiao admitted that the fighting is terrific but the Kwangsi troops are holding their ground.

It is reported that Mr. Hsiao is planning to return to Bangkok owing to his failing health. His colleagues have urged him to remain. In the meantime he will stay here until after the fifth plenary session. If there is no political development, he will return to Siam. Mr. Hsiao was born and brought up in Bangkok. He came back to Canton in 1930 to start the National Government here, being a close follower of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE SERVICE

Nanking, Nov. 21.

Plans for the inauguration of domestic wireless telephone service as well as with foreign countries are under way. It is learnt at the Ministry of Communications.

Through the efforts of the Purchasing Commission in London, part of the machinery and equipment ordered from England, totalling over 80 cases, have arrived in Shanghai and transported to Chienju for installation at the International Radio Station. The rest of the consignment will arrive in China by the end of this year.

According to plans of the Bureau of International Telegraphs, wireless telephone service will first be instituted to link up the important cities in the country, such as Shanghai, Nanking, Hankow, Tientsin and Peiping, and then extended to other countries in March next.

PROMOTION OF TRADE

Mr. Ariyoshi Urged To Visit South

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 28. Japanese merchants in Shanghai have urged Mr. Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, to visit Kwangtung and Kwangsi apparently with the object of promoting Japanese trade in this part of the country. A spokesman of the Japanese legation at Shanghai said that this suggestion has not been decided.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Minister to China, visited Canton last week to see things here on the spot. Exactly a year ago, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, American Minister to China, visited Canton. In view of this precedent, Japanese merchants in Shanghai want Minister Ariyoshi to tour South China in an attempt to promote Japanese interests.

Japanese goods are coming in to Canton in bigger volume than before. The anti-Japanese Boycott Association has ceased to function, "pending reorganization" by the Kwangtung Provincial Kuomintang.

Air Defence Tax

Police officers are going round the city to collect a half month rent tax for the aerial defence of Canton. A novel feature of the collection is that while in the past the collection was derived from the landlord, now payment is made by the tenant.

This works out more satisfactorily to the landlords. In the past they were ordered to pay the rent tax on behalf of the tenants, but in some cases tenants refused to pay rent. The result was that the landlord not only lost one month's rent but had to pay the rent tax on behalf of the tenant.

The second half of the rent tax will be payable on January 1, 1935. A sum of about $2,800,000 will be realized from one month of rent tax. Oddly enough, the funds are to be kept and used by the Air Defence Committee, which is not connected with the Army Corps.

Wang Kam Affair

Mr. Leung Hung Kwang, Magistrate of Chungshan Model County, has sent representatives to Wang Kam Island, which is off Chungshan County, in order to find out whether it is true that the Portuguese authorities in Macao have established police stations on that island, which is within the jurisdiction of Chungshan County.

After graduation they will be sent out to serve in the highway administrations of the three provinces of Kiangsu, Chekiang and Anhwei and the Municipalities of Nanking and Greater Shanghai.

GENERALISSIMO INTERVIEWED

China Already Unified

Nanking, Nov. 28.

The observance of mutual respect and confidence is the only solution to the Sino-Japanese problems. The key is in the hands of Japan, Marshal, Chiang Kai-shek told the "Osaka Mainichi" in an interview.

He declared that China was already unified. The South-west presented no problem. China's day of international strife was over.

There was, he said, no necessity for a dictatorship in China. He had no time even to speculate on the question of assuming the Presidency if called upon.

America and Europe, he continued, had not only refrained from extending their power in China, but were gradually relinquishing some of their special concessions.

He emphasized that the Kuomintang was not departing from the principles of its founder, Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

The Communist question in Kiangsi had been liquidated. Roving bands of Reds might create slight disturbances in other parts of the country, but these would be gradually crushed, he added.

INDEMNIFIED SILK STOCK

Cocoon Shortage Anticipated

Permanent officials of the Department of Agriculture and Forestry are planning to dispose of the indemnified raw silk in the coming year as, owing to the inadequate supply of cocoons, a shortage is predicted.

This silk in question was bought two years ago when, it is recalled, the market was in chaos. Of the 100,000 bales total, about 40,000 bales have since then been disposed of. With little hope of disposal in the immediate future this remaining stock is a constant menace to the market.

According to investigations by the Department of Agriculture and Forestry, a big shortage of cocoons—equivalent to approximately 70,000 bales of raw silk—is inevitable in the next season. Expert traders also think the shortage will range from 50,000 to 100,000 bales (equivalent). Hence the Department of Agriculture authorities think this an excellent opportunity to part with their stock. In their opinion, not only will the disposal make good the possible shortage, and check any rise in prices, but it will remove the depressing factor in the market.

Interest now attaches to what quantity they have in mind for

Berlin, Nov. 27.
A weak tendency prevailed in the sharemarket, without much business being done or without any specially depressing causes being definable. The same listlessness characterised the fixed interest security market, all prices showing the market disposition to sag.

disposal. In order to avoid any fall in prices, the whole quantity cannot be released at one time. It is conjectured in some quarters, that the Government will offer half or one third the quantity of cocoons of which a shortage is felt.

For the execution of the above plan, however, the Indemnified Silk Purchase Law will have to be revised because it stipulates that the Government stock must be sold for new uses or for the exploitation of new markets abroad. The permanent officials are now drafting the necessary bill.

Efforts are also being made by the Department of Agriculture for the disposal of the indemnified stock in various countries. According to the Miyako, following the recent arrangement with the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha for consignment of 5,000 bales to India, the authorities are now planning to ship a substantial quantity to both Egypt and Brazil.

The annual consumption in Brazil is 8,000 bales, and the present plan is to ship at least 1,000 bales. Negotiations are now going on between the authorities and the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha. Japan has already shipped 212 bales this year to Egypt. This quantity is to be brought up to 1,000 bales next year.
